Boneal Awarded $28 Million U.S. Air Force Logistics Contract

MEANS, KY., May 11, 2007 -- Boneal Incorporated has been awarded a three-year, $28 million Third-Party Logistics (3PL) contract to provide support equipment for the United States Air Force.

Boneal will provide several hundred part numbers from as diverse as munitions handling equipment, weapons maintenance equipment and safety/laboratory equipment for the USAF nationwide.

“Reducing equipment lead times and managing costs is essential to our commitment to the Air Force vision of acquisition reform and support of the warfighter,” said John Karaus (LTC U.S. Army ret.), Vice President of Boneal. “Our team stands ready to meet the demands of this opportunity”.

Key elements to the success of Boneal’s 3PL program are acquisition, supplier development, technical problem-solving and logistics management. “We are committed to performance excellence that reduces the wait time for airmen around the globe with equipment needs,” said David Ledford, President of Boneal.

This contract has five option-years and can extend through 2014.

Founded in 1980, Boneal is a prime-contractor to government agencies and private industry and operates as a small business in Means, Kentucky.
